BISCUIT RESIGNATION SOLICITED.

Special Dispatch to The Tribune.
WASHINGTON, D. C., May 10.—The President has received notice that Collector Weitzel will probably arrive to-morrow. He will then be afforded a last opportunity to resign, and if he does not avail himself of this inducement his successor will be appointed. The President to-day informed a Representative from Col. Weitzel's district that he had been asked by persons in his district were not in a satisfactory condition, and that the chance contemplated was for cause. This was explained to the Representative because his constituents desired the President to remove a Collector who had been in a long time, and they desired change for

THE GOOD OF THE DISTRICT.
Special Dispatch to The Tribune.
WASHINGTON, D. C., May 10.—The President had cabled to Secretary Sherman that Col. Weitzel, who had agreed to resign, although the Secretary of the Treasury certified that he was a good officer. It was this presentation of the case that the President replied that the cases were not parallel, because the change in the Cincinnati district was for cause. Secretary Sherman himself, a few days before he left for the West, informed Col. Weitzel that the Head of the Office that the Treasury Department had discovered whisky frauds in Cincinnati, and was just ready to move against the detected parties, when information was given them that compelled the Department to postpone its action. There was a full conference between these three in regard to the matter, and it was decided that Secretary Sherman should write for the resignation at once.

Since the publication in these dispatches of the figures stating Commissioner Raun's estimate of the amount of whisky that had been taken in Cincinnati the amount of whisky taken in Cincinnati since he had been removed has been published in the Cincinnati Times, and it has been ascertained whether these figures were correct, and whether he had been misunderstood, and he replies that these are the estimates as he gave them. Special Dispatch to The Tribune.

What Yarjan discovered and complained of in 1875 has been persistently carried on until the present time. The distillers have been compelled to submit to the same苛刻的 treatment as the rest of us, and in regard to recent events which have led to the request for Col. Weitzel's resignation, he has been neither consulted nor informed. The distillers have been deprived of their franchises, and course failed to secure reappointment.

NOT A CANDIDATE.

Matthews said to Mr. Noyes that he had withdrawn from the field, his (Mr. Kessler's) second was Mr. Matthews. Nothing over past between him and the distillers can be known. He is now in port to return for the office, or in regard to reappointing Mr. Kessler. The support given by Mr. Smith is his own accord.

Special Dispatch to The Tribune.

CINCINNATI, May 10.—The unpublished history of the investigation of the true inwards of the Cincinnati whisky crookedness during the summer and fall of 1875 is even at this date unknown. The most considerable light on the irregularities and occurrences of Collector-Weitzel. During the time mentioned, Revenue Agent Yarjan kept up a vigorous campaign on the distilleries of this city, but so cleverly did they mask their operations, and so skillfully were the books kept, that the most experienced officers in the Department were unable to detect them. An effort was made to compare the revelations which were made in Chicago, Milwaukee, and St. Louis. Some two or three seizures were made, and some indictments found, but, when the cases came to trial, it was found for the reason that public opinion had been manipulated exclusively in the interest of the most notorious of the distillers, and the most expert fakers in the service, who were then in the Collector's office was contemplated, recommended that Mr. Smith should be appointed to take the place of Mr. Matthews for the time being. The distillers, however, were not satisfied with this arrangement. The George Washington, the father of the Whisky Ring, was determined to effect a change in the Collector's office, and he had no objection to the appointment of Mr. Matthews. Mr. Matthews is without any information in regard to such decision.

COLLECTOR WEITZEL anticipated that Yarjan would be put in charge of the foregoings, and, in order to bring about a successful result, he, his brother, Gen. Weitzel, who had no little influence with the Administration. The General wrote to Commissioner Pratt, Secretary Brie-ton, and President Grant, complaining that Yarjan was about to make a political war on him, and that he, Weitzel, was not, and as honest a man as ever the sun shone on." This anticipatory action threw a wet blanket over Yarjan. His letter to the Commission was forwarded to the White House by Secretary Bristol. The President stated that he had no objection of such letter, but that he had asked that Collector Weitzel's record was statistics. The Collector also wrote to the late Senator Morgan, begging him to intercede in his behalf, and wrote to the Commissioner, who was a warm personal friend, interceded in his behalf, and wrote to the Commissioner. A few days afterward, Yarjan wrote a personal letter to the Commissioner, giving the reason for sending it so fully that it is useless to enlarge upon it:

A collision occurred in the river at the Lumber Market yesterday afternoon that came very near resulting more seriously than it did. As it was, considerable damage was done. The tug Ewing was engaged in hauling a schooner loaded with logs, when the prop. Jay Gould came down, and, when the schooner could be gotten clear of the steamer, her jibboom went crashing through the Captain's room, on the starboard side of the propeller, causing some damage to the engine and propeller. The schooner's bowsprit and mainmast were torn out and her injuried. The accident caused commotion in both vessels for a time.

The large scho. A. Moore was soon to sink the boat which had been damaged by the schooner.

MEMOIR OF GENERAL FRANCIS BARTLETT.

FRANCIS WINTHROP PALMER BARTLETT,
Chicago: James McClellan & Co., 1860, pp. 500.

This volume contains little information of a brave, upright, chivalrous life; a life which had its parallel many times over in the army of heroes: men who fought in defense of their clearest principles in the late War of the Rebellion; which still has its parallel in many a career that is being pursued without exception or hindrance. The author has done well in presenting this history of such a life, without leaving out any detail, and without doing any injustice to the man, or any of his contemporaries.

CITY SCRIP.

Meeting of Business-Men, Bankers, and City Officers.

Preliminary Steps Toward Fixing the Value of the Warrants.

A Committee Appointed to Report at a Subsequent Meeting.

A public meeting of taxpayers was held yesterday afternoon in the Council Chamber at the invitation of the Mayor, to talk over the subject of city scrip, take stock toward creating greater confidence in that article, and to consider what steps should be taken to prevent its circulation.

The prominent citizens present were Marshal Field, George C. Clark, D. B. Fiske, Clinton Briggs, Judge Morris, S. S. Hayes, R. P. Dickerson, P. H. Williams, Robert Law, A. H. Hensel, E. E. Root, D. L. Lovell, J. C. Nichols, George E. Nixon, M. G. Gott, L. Z. Letter, E. G. Mason, A. H. Farley, C. T. Wheeler, the Hon. C. B. Farwell, Al. Cook, Throop, Butler, Smith, Thompson Tibbetts, Mr. and Mrs. McNaull, Knobell, Ladd, Culver, Janssens, Pease, Persons, Schuchert, ex-Al. Rosenblum, Briggs, Mackay, Barnard, and Mayor Heath. Corporation-Counsel Bonfield, and ComputerFarwell.

Mr. Hesing thought that by proper management warrants to the amount of from $2,000,000 to $3,000,000 would be sufficient to meet the demand.

Mr. Field suggested that the city should consist of business men, without regard to class, and that it was better that the scrip could be placed among the business men, without any discount whatever, and a large amount of scrip could be obtained by the subject.

Mr. Farley said that he did not believe in the subject.

Mr. Farwell said that he was in favor of the scrip, and that it would be a good idea.
